

TOY MANUFACTURING

The global toys market accounted for over $183 billion US$ in 2023, and is projected to develop $326 billion US$ by 2032. This large industry can be defined many ways, and presents a broad range of exposures serving infants, children and adults. This market can also include overlap with others, including sporting goods and books. It is characterized by new entity entrants and turnover, constant new product offerings, seasonal sales and discontinued products. Because most of the products are designed to be used by minors, the product claim loss experience is subject to a longer development period of time before the losses can be closed out and defined. As a result, each submission will be evaluated on its own merit as a consumer goods manufacturer. The most common injuries that get reported from toys involve choking, falls, eye injuries, drowning and motor vehicle accidents.

PHLY E&S toy product guidelines are age specific and will NOT provide support for toys designed for infants...children under 2 years of age. In addition, we will avoid the following types of toys:

- Playground toys
- Imitation guns
- Ride-on toys
- Toys using batteries
- Electric toys
- Children's furniture
- Inflatables
- Toys with small parts, including magnets
- Projectile toys
- Toys that can be sucked, mouthed and/or ingested
- Toys that have sharp edges or points
